

Inspiration in HR Award...

The Inspiration in HR Award seeks to recognise the work of Human Resources professionals. In its 18th year, the award is open to either individuals or organisations and runs with the support of IFSEC Global. Entries can be self-nominated; judges are looking for best practices in Human Resource Management where an organisation recognises that the HR profession is a business enabler and partner in managing a successful business.

To reach the shortlist organisations will have demonstrated that they are quality focused and have a pride in looking after and developing their workforce. You will see a partnership in HR and operations management. Shortlisted companies see their HR function as giving them a competitive edge, they clearly demonstrate going above and beyond any current standards as you have to be a quality provider to make the Inspiration in HR shortlist.

This award recognises a critical differentiator in business application. Previous winners and short-listed organisations for this award have proven their credentials. Service sectors rely on teams of people operating across a number of environments, from customer-focused settings through to those that require an in-depth knowledge of technology. For their part, Human Resources professionals play a key role in the selection, training to meet the changing threats and monitoring of thousands of individuals across these different spheres.

The Inspiration in HR Award provides these professionals with the recognition they so richly deserve. The winner will be presented with their prize during the Security & Fire IFSEC Global at The London Hilton Hotel, Park Lane on Monday 2nd December 2024. The winners will be profiled in a leading industry publication. Entries should be received by 5pm Monday 16th September 2024 and submitted by e-mail to: awards@ssr-personnel.com

About IFSEC Insider www.IFSECGlobal.com

IFSEC Insider (formerly IFSEC Global) is a leading provider of news, features, reports and white papers for the security and fire industry. Preeminent in the UK with a truly global audience, covering developments in long-established physical technologies – such as video surveillance, access control, intruder/fire alarms and physical security – and emerging innovations in AI, counter-drones, smart buildings, home automation, the internet of things and more. With the help of the industry's foremost thought leaders, IFSEC Insider also examines the latest developments and best practice in disciplines like security management, counter-terror and fire-risk assessments. From vendors and system integrators to security professionals who buy, manage and operate fire and security technologies, content caters to the full supply chain.

IFSEC Insider draws on a long pedigree in the security and fire sectors. It's sister exhibition, IFSEC, launched in the UK in 1972. Both are part of Informa Markets, the world's largest event organiser.
